Mr. N B Shver, having determined to close out his business in thopkinsville at once, to enter the wholessle Jewelry business in Nashville and wenting to convert his stock of overchandles into ready cash, has sold to us his entire stock of B te, Shore, Chathing, Furnishings, Tranks and Rubber Coate at bigger bargains then we have everyel, with all our good-fortune, been shie in huy goods. And true to the principles of our early business training we will as we have siways done in the past, give those goods to our patrons at one regular rate of small profits upon our cost. We thought had have we are more diheral or bigger havried than other merchants, but because we can make more money this way then by holding the goods at their full value. And that there is more money to this course then any other has been attested over and over again by the immonse patronage have had slees the first day we opened in Hopkinsville. A patronage, too, that appreciates the course wa follow and lanys our bargains quickly, eachling us to turn our money over often and to be always ready for the next stangister sale that comes along

To catch bargains is our thoughts by day and our dressus by night. They have been the secret of our ances a holder than the patronage and to our course was continue to

Mr. C. T. Mason, of Beverley, has bought a steam pluw for use on his farms, which is the first ever brought and could well afford to do so. Into Christian county if not the only used with threshers, and does the work of slx fourteen-inch plows. The plows are behind and the engineer stands on a platform between the engine and plows, with the water-tanks on each side of him. The plows fallow a furrow uino feet wide at a round, doing the work of six twohorse plows. The machine was purchased in Waynesboro, Pa, and tho list price is $2,800. It reached here Saturday and will be on exhibition In the city a few days before Mr. Masou takes it to the country.

SPREAD OF LEPROSY.

Since the death of Father Damien of leprosy at the leper colony in the Sandwich Islands public attention has been especially drawn to this loathsome disease, both in Europe and America. In England the Prince of Wides has popointized a movement for a memorial to the martyr who gave uphis life so unselfishly to succor his unfortunets fellow-crentures, but the Prince has done more then this. In has unearthed a leper in London among the hutchers' stalls, and ho has directed scientific inquiry to the number of lepers to England and the possibility of the spread of the disease in the United Kingdom. "The second cause of derailment is a broken reil. The improvament by which we seek to obviete this is the use of steel rails, and these steel rails are being made heavier from time to time, and couse-quently aronger. When we began using them, the atendard weight was forty-five pounds. Is was not long before this standard were raised to sixty-five portade, and the last we are using are eighty poneds. Besides this great increase in weight end concemitant etrength and durability, there is an improvament in the manufacours af back the rail and the raw steel from which it is mede. The use of this meterial in she place of wrought from is the consequence of the inventions and discoveries of Bessemer, Liemens and Thomms.
